Camping

When I was little, I would go camping with my parents. When it was time to go camping, my mom was a bear when she got up. She would growl at me for waking her up. My dad laughed when he heard her yelling at me. While my mom was waking up, my dad and I would get ready and eat breakfast. When my mom finally walked into the kitchen, I pointed at her head and told her that her hair was like a bird's nest. After that, we all were ready and we went to the campsite, where my mom's friends were waiting.

After we put the tent up, we had dinner. I would flee inside the giant orange tent to eat because I didn't want to get bitten by the mosquitos. My mom laughed and said that I was like a fox, because I would retreat to the tent like one. I growled at her because of that.

We then settled down for the night. When morning arrived, my mom told me that there was a bear outside our tent last night. I just stared at her, and she nodded. I shrugged and said that we should go swimming. My mom smiled and told me to go wake dad up. I ran inside the tent and jumped on him, howling. He woke up and started to yell but I said that we're waiting to go swimming. I put my swimsuit on and sped outside, where my mom, dad, and my mom's friends were waiting.

We arrived at the lake. I howled cheerfully as I splashed in the water. Then, for the rest of the day we were swimming, hiking, and eating S'mores. I still remember the day I went camping.
